

I'm inside of a body
a human body
and it feels alive

outside of time outside of space
i'm transforming

in a split second i can be somewhere else

I don't know how long i've been here but its been a while

its very warm
and its fluid
so far this is the only information i received

I keep moving
moving along this body
as if its a universe

i'm waiting
but i'm waiting outside time time is irrelevant
it could be relevant for others, maybe observers
but for me its different

as i move through as i survive this world
i have no notion of time as long as space unstable
i keep moving

this body is a paradox
my body and my world
they blend together
everything inside of me
is equally outside

its confusing

my shape is changing
constantly changing

i can't see the boundaries between my body and the body that i'm in

